REPUBLICANS ACT TO CUT PATRONAGE FROM RELIEF BILL

Vandenbergs Amendment
Would Turn Spending of Billion Over to States and Kill PWA, WPA.

BLESS GROWING,
HOPKINS TESTIFIES

SELL ASKS SENATE TO BLOCK $215,000,000 OF Funds for the Farmers.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(UP) The Republicans today sought to oust President Roosevelt's $4,000,000 lend-lease recovery from a possible patronage by introduction of an amendment designed to turn administration of relief funds over to the states.

A politically significant move, during the off-year election, was engineered by Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, in an amendment intended to "more relief at less cost" abolishing federal relief administration and creating a bipartisan board to allocate federal funds to the states on a basis.

Utilities Plead.

Valuing Vandenberg's plan in its entirety was the plea of Chairman Gadsden, of the committee of executives, who urged the appropriations subcommittee studying the bill to end government competition with private power and release a business force which "holds the greatest single issue of jobs and recovery."

Referred to Public Works Administration loans and grants to municipalities and states under him, he said, the administrator pour hundreds of millions of dollars into public duplication of existing facilities for generation, transmission and distribution of electric power."

The fears of utility investors were allayed, he said, he could assure that the industry would stand as a patriotic duty" to combat the depression.

4,000,000 More Jobless.

Relief decentralization program came only a short time after the Progress Administrator L. Hopkins had told the committee that unemployment mounting. He estimated that approximately 4,000,000 have lost jobs since the beginning of depression last October.

Previous testimony before the committee, Hopkins estimated the employment drop at 400,000. The figures presented indicated an upward revision of 1,000,000 in the ranks of jobless within the last few months. He declined to comment on his testimony, but voiced opposition to Vandenberg's proposal.

On fitting into the recovery there was rising congressional action to proposed railroad cuts. Chairman Wagner, Democrat, New York, of the Senate banking and currency committee, joined the powerful group which will oppose granting of government loans to the nation's banks if they persist in attempts to force a 15 per cent wage reduction.

Regarding his amendment, un-

"Dr." Socrates, the "Persian" alley cat held by Mrs. J. G. Barker, of Ben Hill, performed an operation for his mistress. Mrs. Barker was totally blind in her left eye. Socrates, in a fit of rage, scratched and bit the sightless optic. Now Mrs. Barker can see perfectly out of the eye. The cat punctured the eyeball and drained pus which obscured vision. Doctors had told her the eyeball would have to be removed or she would face death.

LIQUOR ACT FIGHT CENTERED ON CALL

Georgia Supreme Court
Takes Cases Under Advisement, Waits Briefs.

By the Associated Press.

Attack and defense of Georgia's new liquor law in the supreme court yesterday centered on Governor Rivers' call for the 1937-38 special session of the legislature and whether the act was revenue or police legislation.

A full bench of six justices heard two hours' arguments from three lawyers, allowed an additional 15 days for filing supplemental briefs and took the two cases involved under advisement.

The cases were appeals from Cobb and Quitman counties, in which trial judges permitted local option elections on legalizing liquor to be held, but granted supersecedes withholding funds to pay for elections.

Legislators Are Lawyers.

Aligned against each other in the court fight were two lawyers who also led opposing sides in the special session during enactment of the liquor bill. They were Representatives L. A. Whipple, of Bleckley county, prohibitionist leader, and Representative James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county, proponent of the new law.

R. S. Wimberley, Lumpkin attorney, followed Whipple in a brief argument and Attorney R. S. Grove, of Marietta, assisted Carmichael but did not argue.

'Lost' Sight Restored By Cat's Scratch

Woman Reveals Angered
Animal Saved Her From Blindness.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A pet cat which scratched and bit Mrs. J. G. Barker, of Ben Hill, saved her from total blindness in one eye and from possible death, she revealed yesterday.

Socrates, the cat, accidentally performed an operation on her left eyeball and drained a growth which had totally blocked vision in her left eye for nearly two years.

A year before, a doctor had told Mrs. Barker the eyeball would have to be removed or she would face death from tuberculosis of the eye. She refused.

Sees Well As Ever.

The cat in a fit of rage scratched and bit his mistress' eye and accomplished what numerous physicians were unable to do. Mrs. Barker now sees perfectly with the eye.

Socrates came to the Barker family in Carrollton, Ga., when about a year old. He was of average size and weight. He was raised by a negro woman.

One day, while the Barkers were living in Griffin, Socrates got out of the house and ran across the street, with Mrs. Barker closely pursuing. She caught him and clasped him in her hands to take him home again.

As she walked home, Mrs. Barker scolded Socrates, more or less

This Is Believed To Be Very Significant, Since Date Is Near Primary.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Assurances were given Governor Rivers today by both RFC Chairman Jesse Jones and WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins of the co-operation of the two government agencies in working out details of the proposed $6,500,000 construction program for improvements in Georgia eleemosynary institutions.

"I am confident that the state project will be approved substantially as we originally proposed," Rivers said. "Final negotiations are yet to be completed on some of the details, but Georgia will get the money."

After completing a round of official calls, the Georgia executive ended his two-day visit to the capital by catching an afternoon train to Savannah preparatory to a dedicatory speech tomorrow at Pembroke in Bryan county.

Jones Promises Aid.

Accompanied by Senator Walter F. George, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., and Edgar B. Dunlap, RFC counsel for the Georgia agency, he conferred first this morning with Chairman Jones regarding discount of the W. & A. rental warrants to be used as a basis of a grant promised by the WPA for financing the new $6,500,000 state development program. Jones told the state group that he would make every effort to have the discount funds, aggregating some $3,200,000, made available to the state immediately and without awaiting the outcome of a test case to determine the validity of the act authorizing the program.

The question of validity has been raised in view of the fact that in the call for the recent special session of the legislature which approved the act, no specific reference was made to the legislation.

At the same time, Chairman Jones promised to reconsider his earlier proposition for charging the state an interest rate of 3 1/2 or 3 1/4 per cent on the money. Governor Rivers is insisting that 3 per cent is ample.

Few Large Projects.

Supporting the application for the RFC loan, the two Georgia senators reminded Chairman Jones that the state, with one or two exceptions, has been denied the benefits of large government projects such as approved for many other sections of the country.

Half of Cardiff, City of 200,000, Sold by Owner for $100,000,000

CARDIFF, Wales, May 17.—(AP) Half a city changed hands today when the immensely wealthy Marquess of Bute sold part of this world port of 200,000 population for a price understood to be about 20,000,000 pounds ($100,000,000). The mammoth real estate deal was believed to be the largest ever recorded in Great Britain.

Neither the purchaser nor the actual price was disclosed, but the sale included wide residential suburbs, shopping centers and the huge, busy docks from which south Wales exports most of its coal.

Cardiff's municipal area includes 13,628 acres but the Marquess did not disclose the acreage of the land involved in the sale, which covered about 20,000 houses, 1,000 stores and 250 saloons.

$100,000 Touhy Gang Loot Cache Is Sought in Georgia Mountains

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 17.—Somewhere in east Tennessee or north Georgia officers believed tonight they would eventually find a cache of $100,000 which the Chicago Touhy gang stole from a mail truck at Chattooga, N. C., in 1933.

Others aboard were Mrs. Carl B. Squier, of North Hollywood, wife of a Lockheed executive; Lola Totty, Lockheed stenographer; Miss Evelyn Dingle, of St. Paul, N.W.A. employee; Sid Willey, of Burbank, who was at the controls, and Fred Whittemore, of St. Paul, the co-pilot.

Death struck as the tumorous growth reached the brain cells, only a few hours after he had been playing in apparently good health at his home.

When the growth was discovered two years ago, an Atlanta specialist declared an operation hopeless. A Rome eye specialist, however, removed the right eye in an unsuccessful attempt to halt the growth.

The administration measure carried no funds, but the navy department has recommended an immediate appropriation of about $12,000,000 to start the program which eventually will increase total navy tonnage by 20 per cent.

nounced additional labor had been acquired to facilitate the necessarily slow and laborious work. He said the work would be divided into two 12-hour shifts.

The mayor conferred with heads of the city construction, sanitary and fire departments. He told them to "go ahead with the work and not to worry about expenses if it were necessary to buy equipment to aid search for bodies."

Four laborers at work on the city auditorium were assigned to searching work, and 12 other men were also placed on the job.

Search for Bodies Slow.

Major Hartsfield said searching for bodies had to proceed slowly due to danger of collapse of the remaining walls. He also said that digging had to be done carefully so that bodies found would not be inadvertently mutilated.

The 30th body, that of a man, was found near the elevator shaft in the center of the building shortly before 6 o'clock last night. The body was taken to the establishment of Harry G. Poole.

The 29th body, also a man, was found shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, buried deep in debris near the rear of the building, toward the new post office. Searchers said the body was in the worst condition of any yet found.

The body, unidentified, also was taken to the establishment of Harry G. Poole.

"More in There."

Fire Chief Parker reiterated previous statements that "there are more in there." He added he would not be surprised by the number, but said he could not estimate how many additional bodies may be recovered.

An unexpected development occurred with the appearance of Henry Jackson, negro cook in the hotel restaurant, who had been missing since the fire roared through the hotel from basement kitchen to roof.

Jackson told police he was so frightened after escaping from the blazing kitchen that he "ran home and stayed there."

He said he left the kitchen for a few minutes early Monday morning to obtain some oatmeal

Burns to Death in Hotel

UNDERTAKER TOLD TO SURRENDER BODY

Overstreet Family Fire Dead Are Reunited by Court Order.

Bodies of members of Lewis Overstreet's family—all victims of the Terminal hotel fire—were reunited last night after a municipal court ruling directed a funeral home to give up the body of the mother-in-law, Mrs. Emma Albert Bacon, whose charred body was uncovered yesterday.

The bodies of Overstreet's wife and three children—Jacqueline, 11, and the 9-year-old twins, Jimmy and Jean—were at the Harry G. Poole Funeral Home, where funeral arrangements were being delayed until the body of Mrs. Bacon was found at noon.

W. J. Morris, of Fitzgerald, Ga., one of many burned to death early Monday in the Terminal hotel fire, was said to be the oldest engineer from the point of service on the A. B. & C. railroad.

And grits from a nearby store-room. When he returned, he said, he noticed that the exhaust pipe leading to the blower fan was red hot.

"Then it suddenly blazed up with a big flash," he said. Jackson said he broke down a door leading to the alley and ran out. He said he heard no blast and knew of no attempts to start a fire in the main heating boiler.

He added, however, that he had not been called upon to start a heater fire. Chief Parker said Monday he was investigating reports a guest had complained of being cold and that a hotel employee had gone into the basement to see about heat.

The chief said rapidly with which flames spread caused him to believe "flames were blown all over at once."

Andrew Jones, city fire inspector, said he had been called twice in the past three years to the hotel to inspect a smoking ventilator shaft which ran from the basement kitchen to the roof of the building.

He said the ventilator fan, when last inspected, was covered with grease and dust. He pointed out this put an added strain on the fan motor, which might cause it to spark and consequently ignite the grease.

"With the shaft full of grease and with air current, flames would be shot up like a blow torch," he said.

Meanwhile, five persons burned or injured in the fire, called by Chief Parker the "deadliest in the city's history," remained in serious condition at Grady hospital.

One was dismissed, however.

He was Gillean P. Jones, 65, who suffered severe nervous shock.

Those still in the hospital included Mrs. W. Guy Coleman, widow of a former city alderman, who was removed alive from the burned building. She was reported in critical condition.

William A. Clapp, 39, badly burned, was reported still in serious condition; Ben L. Berry, 70, of 1506 Boulevard, N. E., clerk, badly burned, poor condition; Mrs. George P. Jones, overcome by smoke, serious condition, and Fireman A. Crumley, fair condition.

SCORES FLEE FIRE IN FAIR STREET

Houses Damaged, Shed and Six Barns Destroyed in Loomis Area.

Scores of residents fled their homes early last night when a three-alarm fire destroyed a shed of the Larkin Refrigerating Corporation at 519 Fair street, six barns in the rear of homes on Loomis avenue and partially burned three residences.

Household goods and furniture were piled on Loomis avenue, between Woodward avenue and Fair street, as flames threatened other houses.

Fire Chief O. J. Parker estimated damage to all buildings at $5,000. S. H. Hardman, night watchman at the refrigerating plant, said the blaze started in one of the barns and spread rapidly. Homes damaged were at 304, 306 and 312 Loomis avenue.

JURY ASKS CLOSING OF ALL FIRE TRAPS

Conference With Officials on Hotel Fire Is Set for Tomorrow.

Intention to make a "thorough shakedown" of circumstances surrounding the Terminal hotel fire designed "to prevent recurrence of such a tragic disaster to Atlanta" was disclosed yesterday by the Fulton county grand jury. A conference on the matter with city officials was scheduled for 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mayor Hartsfield, Fire Chief O. J. Parker, Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, Fire Marshal M. H. Carter, City Electrician Dewey L. Johnson, City Attorney Jack Savage, City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen and City Smoke Inspector A. W. Jones were requested to meet with the grand jury.

To Prevent Recurrence.

"The grand jury is determined to prevent recurrence of such a tragic disaster. It is a terrible thought to think of the persons trapped in a building completely enveloped in flames, and members of the jury are going to do everything in their power to provide safety from future disasters of this nature," John W. Sikes, jury secretary, said.

It was understood that the grand jury will appoint a committee to ferret out fire hazards in the city.

The grand jury feels that any "firetraps" in Atlanta should be immediately condemned and padlocked until the hazards are removed and the building can meet the requirements of the city buildings code.

LIQUOR ACT FIGHT CENTERED ON CALL

Georgia Supreme Court Takes Cases Under Advice, Waits Briefs.

Half a dozen other lawyers appeared for opponents of the law, serving without fee, Whipple said. Both cases were argued together.

Analyzes Call.

Whipple analyzed the Governor's call authorizing legislative action on 79 items during the special session, and said it did not permit enactment of the liquor law.

"Under the constitution the people have a right to know the character of business to be taken up by a special session," he contended, "and the Governor's call was not a proper notice that liquor legislation was to be handled."

Replying, Carmichael countered that the constitution is more liberal than those of other states in allowing the legislature to consider anything that relates to objects stated in the Governor's call.

"The call included taxation by any manner whatsoever," the young Cobb legislator declared. "The one and only purpose of the liquor act was to raise revenue much needed by the state."

Caption Quoted.

Wimberley pointed to the caption of the act and told the court: "The primary purpose, confessedly so in the caption here, was to control liquor. A digest of court action all over the land on such legislation would show they say it is a police measure."

Calling the act "police legislation," Whipple cited two previous Georgia supreme court decisions which he said ruled police powers of the state and taxing powers could not be tied together.

"In this liquor act," said Whipple, "they have repealed the prohibition law and set up a substitute code leaving out many salutary parts for the control of liquor which historically has been held amenable to police power."

"Clearly" Within Call.

Carmichael said the legislature "brought itself clearly within the language of the Governor's call in passing the liquor law. The wisdom of this legislation is not a question for this court, but the legality of the act is."

Answering his opponents' contention the act had no right to delegate authority to the counties to make the act effective by elections, Carmichael said "other laws, such as the fence law, have been passed and held legal, giving the people that right."

Saying his opponents pleaded a plurality of subjects in the act, Carmichael said the court could and should strike sections not germane to the law as a whole, and not the entire act.

SCRATCH OF CAT RESTORES SIGHT

playfully. She shook the cat held in her hands before her face.

Socrates' claws shot out and raked through her scalp and forehead. He bit viciously and his teeth and sharp claws struck Mrs. Barker directly in her blind eye.

Mrs. Barker held on and carried Socrates into the house and then walked five blocks to a doctor's office where the physician took 17 stitches to close the facial wounds.

Socrates was very much in disgrace. Mrs. Barker's husband wanted to kill the cat immediately. But the doctor warned if the cat was killed Mrs. Barker would have to take the Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia. He advised them to keep Socrates locked up to see if the cat was mad. This saved Socrates for the life of ease he now lives.

Wound Re-dressed.

The Griffin doctor dressed Mrs. Barker's blind eye, not knowing the eyeball had been punctured by the cat's teeth or claws. The next day he removed the bandage and opened Mrs. Barker's "sightless" optic to put in medicine.

"I can see," cried Mrs. Barker. "I can see the window." The doctor laughed.

"You just imagine you see it," he said. But she did, because every day when her eye was dressed she could see a little better. At first, everything looked pink.

"It was like looking at the world through rose-colored glasses sure enough," she laughingly said yesterday.

MORGAN CONSIDERS SUIT ON TVA OUSTER

Dr. Morgan said that since his ouster March 23 when he defied Mr. Roosevelt's personal inquiry into the feud in the agency directorate, he had consulted with attorneys but he has reached no definite decision.

CARLISLE QUALIFIES TO RUN AGAINST COX

Three-Cornered Race Develops in Second Georgia District.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Judge Ira Carlisle paid his entrance fee as a candidate for congress yesterday to D. R. Bryan, of Bainbridge, secretary of the Second District Democratic Committee.

His entry shaped a three-cornered race in the district. Representative E. E. Cox, the incumbent, is expected to campaign for reelection. Previously announced as an opponent of Cox was W. J. Crowe, of Sylvester. Cox has represented his district, extending over 14 southwest Georgia counties, more than 12 years.

The second district battle is the third contest developed for the 1938 campaigns. In the first district, Representative Hugh Peterman faces a possible race with three men, Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro; T. Ross Sharpe, of Lyons, and Marvin Cox, of Swainsboro, none of whom has qualified thus far.

In the fourth district, Sidney Camp, assistant United States district attorney, and Phillips Moore, of Franklin, have entered the contest for the congress seat of Emmett M. Owen, of Griffin.

Meanwhile, in Macon, the congressional course of Carl Vinson was endorsed by resolution at a meeting of the Sixth District Democratic Executive Committee, which adopted rules for the September 14 primary.

In Columbus, the third district congressional committee adopted a resolution commending the record of Representative Stephen Pace, of Americus.

J. T. Sisk, of Elberton meanwhile, became the third qualified candidate for superior court judge of the northeastern circuit, when he paid his $250 fee to the state committee. Other qualifiers are the incumbent, Judge Marshall Allison, of Lavonia, and L. M. Johnson, of Royston. Sisk is a former state senator.

successfully sponsored in the house by Representative Bacon, Republican, New York, Vandenberg said the states would take the responsibility as to the method of providing relief and "we would get more relief at less money."

Under his plan a non-partisan board would be set up to distribute federal relief funds to states on condition that they contribute 25 cents for every federal dollar received and administer the funds through non-partisan commissions or boards.

It would strike out title II of the administration's bill, which is the "so-called priming section relating to PWA loans and grants. The local administration of relief would automatically do away with PWA, WPA and all similar agencies. The funds would be allocated to the states on the basis of population, area, financial resources and unemployment. Of the total fund, $160,000,000 would be held back for emergencies.

SAFETY COUNCIL FOR CITY URGEDCivitan Club Told Education Will Save Lives.

Lon E. Sullivan, state director of safety education, yesterday advocated formation of a citizens' safety council in Atlanta as a means of reducing traffic fatalities.

Speaking before the Civitan Club, he said education of the people to the dangers of careless and reckless driving was the only effective means of reducing the state's annual traffic toll.

"We've got to change public sentiment toward recklessness and speed," he said. "If the Civitan Club can stir up enough interest in saving human lives to create a new public sentiment even among its own members, much will have been accomplished in the crusade to stop killings."

HUNGRY CLAMOR FOR FOOD ORDERS

CLEVELAND, May 17.—(AP)—Shabbily dressed "relievers" sat doggedly hour after hour today in Cleveland's city council chamber reading newspapers and applauding exhortations for restoration of full food orders.

Approximately 150, a tenth of them women, continued an organized demonstration called last night by the Workers' Alliance, an organization of unemployed and WPA workers. No attempt was made to disperse the group.

The group made plans to send a delegation to confer with a legislative committee which came here from Columbus to determine if $17,000,000 asked by Ohio cities for 1938 relief needs actually is needed. The lawmakers convened Monday in a special relief session, called after state relief funds were exhausted.

WOODRUFF TO SEEK M'WHORTER'S POSTCandidate for Service Commission Ousted by Talmadge in 1933.

Albert J. Woodruff, ousted by Governor Eugene Talmadge in 1933 as a member of the Georgia Public Service Commission, yesterday announced his candidacy for the commission post now held by Matt L. McWhorter.

Woodruff, who lives in Decatur, was elected to the commission in September, 1932, for a term to begin in December, 1933. He was ousted by former Governor Talmadge in July of that year, along with Commissioners James A. Perry, Walter R. McDonald, Perry T. Knight and Julie W. Fenton.

Woodruff's statement announcing his candidacy follows:

"I am a candidate for a position on the Georgia Public Service Commission for the place now held by Commissioner Matt L. McWhorter. As the people of Georgia remember, I was elected six years ago to the commission to the place now held by Commissioner McWhorter and was not permitted to serve a single day. I will enter actively into a statewide campaign. The people will remember that I was the first candidate that ever campaigned in every county in the state and carried 151 counties. I enter this race with absolute confidence of an overwhelming victory."

"I would have run two years ago, but after Mr. McWhorter entered, I declined to be a party to a three-cornered race."

trator Hopkins was undertaken in connection with a proposed $5,000,000 WPA grant. Preliminary negotiations were held in Atlanta during President Roosevelt's recent visit to Warm Springs.

Before leaving, Governor Rivers also urged Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace to expedite issuance of farm benefit payments overdue in Georgia for compliance with the federal agricultural program.

While Governor Rivers' second day in Washington was missing in some of the political implications growing out of his extended White House luncheon conference with the President yesterday, his presence continued to excite speculation as to his plans for running for office. In Georgia delegation circles the question was foremost, and interest in the situation was fanned by stories given prominent display in some of the eastern papers dwelling on the possible political effect of his meeting with Mr. Roosevelt. What took place or what was said at that meeting, Governor Rivers insisted had no political significance. His only reply to queries has been that he is not yet ready to announce a decision on whether he will seek re-election to oppose Senator George.

HONORARY DEGREE.
Many political observers interpreted the announcement yesterday of President Roosevelt's visit to Athens in the midst of the campaign news as an attempt to deliver a speech and accept an honorary degree from the University of Georgia as indicating a purpose of the Georgia primary, just as he has already in a number of states.

Reflecting the general tenor of other interpretations made of the same development, the New York Herald-Tribune in a lead front page story of this morning said under the signature of its Washington bureau, Albert L. Warner:

"In separate conferences with Governor Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, and Governor E. D. Rivers of Georgia, the encouragement of White House association was given to these state executives in their preparation to run against Senators Ells D. Smith and Walter F. George, conservatives of South Carolina and Georgia, respectively."

"While reserving his anticipated decision to run for senator, Governor E. D. Rivers obtained from the President a promise to go to Georgia during the hot days of mid-August, to receive a degree from the University of Georgia, and to make a speech there. That occasion will be in the very midst of the primary campaign. Governor Johnson is on the steps of the White House, announced he came to Washington at the invitation of the President and was ready to run against Senator Smith on the issue of 'loyalty.'

Despite this outside interpretation of events here and the inconsistent silence of the Governor, it

Georgia's crusade against speed and recklessness on state highways has resulted in a reduction of traffic fatalities, figures released yesterday by L. E. Sullivan, director of public safety, reveal. The total number of traffic deaths from January 1 through April 1 of this year was 282, an average of 17 per week, the report shows. This was 64 less than in previous years for same period.

The report shows a steady decline from January when 76 were killed. Seventy-one fatalities were reported in February, 62 in March and 53 in April.

During the first six months of existence the state patrol recorded 55 stolen cars, conducted 1,000 special investigations, issued 15,995 warning slips, brought $17,000 in fines to the county and ordinary courts statewide.

The state trooper made 1,450 stops during the six-month period less than two per cent of cases made have resulted in fatalities. Patrolmen rendered aid to 173 people injured in accidents.

Public Evenly Split on Lotteries To Pay State Government Costs

Poll Reveals Half of Voters Fear Gambling Spirit, While Others Laud Measure Now Being Considered by New York Constitutional Assembly.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, May 17.—American public sentiment is almost evenly divided on the question, now being debated in the New York Constitutional Assembly, of whether states should conduct lotteries to help pay the cost of government.

Slightly more than half of the voters in a survey throughout the nation oppose the principle on the ground that states should not try to raise funds by any process even remotely connected with gambling, no matter how worthy the cause. The other half argues that local governments might just as well try to get a share of the millions of dollars which go out of the country every year for the Irish sweepstakes and other lotteries.

The issue is especially significant today as many state and local governments face the difficult task of raising money to help care for the growing ranks of the unemployed.

Opinion Deadlocked on Question.

But the deadlock of opinion on the question indicates that if the drive for legalized lotteries extends to other states beside New York, it will probably cause a lively and dramatic controversy, with strong forces deployed on both sides.

The survey on lotteries, which was conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, put the following question to voters in all walks of life:

"Would you favor lotteries in your state to help pay the cost of government?"

The vote was:

Yes 49 per cent
No 51 per cent

In a companion question the institute asked:

"Do you think government lotteries would produce an unwholesome gambling spirit in this country?"

In the interpleader, Miss Daughtry, through her attorney, related the events leading to her giving Cobb the power of attorney.

She related Cobb came to her home in Pennsylvania on October 15, 1937, informed her of her father's death, told her there was a will in which she had been cut off with $1, and asserted he could break the will and obtain for her a part of the estate which would amount to about $5,000.

The interpleader further stated Cobb received $500 from the administrator, and that he had not accounted to Miss Daughtry according to their contract. It also asserted the power of attorney given Cobb was revoked when she learned she did not need an attorney.

Asserting Miss Daughtry would receive $25,000 from the estate and was solvent, the interpleader declared Cobb to be insolvent, and any amount paid to him would jeopardize her interest.

CONVICT FILES PLEA TO ESCAPE PRISON

Sam R. Beard, convicted of violating District of Columbia gambling laws, filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in federal court here yesterday.

Beard was given a two-to-six-year term after being found guilty in May, 1935, and entered the Atlanta penitentiary in April, 1936.

His petition charges that he was convicted on evidence obtained by wire tapping which has been ruled out by the supreme court.

An order signed by Judge E. Marvin Underwood set a hearing on the petition for June 3.

POOR VOTERS FAVOR LOTTERY.

The lottery idea is much more popular among poor voters than among the well-to-do. Even though this method of paying the cost of relief might reduce the burden on taxpayers, the upper and middle income groups oppose it by approximately 55 per cent—chiefly on moral grounds. The lower income group is 55 per cent in favor of legalized lotteries.

Women reached in the survey were much more suspicious of the lottery idea than men. Six out of every ten women voted against legal lotteries, whereas men were about six to four in favor. Judging from comments, housewives fear apparently that their husbands may squander pay checks on lottery tickets. "Lotteries waste poor people's money," was the comment of one typical woman voter.

STATESBORO, Ga., May 17.—(AP)—D. C. Jones of Statesboro, attorney for Miss Marie Daughtry, daughter of the late Charlie L. Daughtry, who was found slain in a Screven county swamp last September, today had filed an interpleader in Screven superior court.

The interpleader was in answer to one filed by B. W. Miller, administrator of the Daughtry estate, against Miss Daughtry and Albert L. Cobb, former attorney for her, requiring the defendants to set forth claims as to the rightful person to receive funds in the distribution of the estate.

In the interpleader, Miss Daughtry, through her attorney, related the events leading to her giving Cobb the power of attorney.

Sam R. Beard, convicted of violating District of Columbia gambling laws, filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in federal court here yesterday.

Beard was given a two-to-six-year term after being found guilty in May, 1935, and entered the Atlanta penitentiary in April, 1936.

His petition charges that he was convicted on evidence obtained by wire tapping which has been ruled out by the supreme court.

An order signed by Judge E. Marvin Underwood set a hearing on the petition for June 3.

POOR VOTERS FAVOR LOTTERY.

The lottery idea is much more popular among poor voters than among the well-to-do. Even though this method of paying the cost of relief might reduce the burden on taxpayers, the upper and middle income groups oppose it by approximately 55 per cent—chiefly on moral grounds. The lower income group is 55 per cent in favor of legalized lotteries.

Women reached in the survey were much more suspicious of the lottery idea than men. Six out of every ten women voted against legal lotteries, whereas men were about six to four in favor. Judging from comments, housewives fear apparently that their husbands may squander pay checks on lottery tickets. "Lotteries waste poor people's money," was the comment of one typical woman voter.

WILL OF DAUGHTRY RETURNS TO COURT

Daughter Declares Cobb, Former Attorney, Is Insolvent.

STATESBORO, Ga., May 17.—(AP)—D. C. Jones of Statesboro, attorney for Miss Marie Daughtry, daughter of the late Charlie L. Daughtry, who was found slain in a Screven county swamp last September, today had filed an interpleader in Screven superior court.

The interpleader was in answer to one filed by B. W. Miller, administrator of the Daughtry estate, against Miss Daughtry and Albert L. Cobb, former attorney for her, requiring the defendants to set forth claims as to the rightful person to receive funds in the distribution of the estate.

In the interpleader, Miss Daughtry, through her attorney, related the events leading to her giving Cobb the power of attorney.

She related Cobb came to her home in Pennsylvania on October 15, 1937, informed her of her father's death, told her there was a will in which she had been cut off with $1, and asserted he could break the will and obtain for her a part of the estate which would amount to about $5,000.

The interpleader further stated Cobb received $500 from the administrator, and that he had not accounted to Miss Daughtry according to their contract. It also asserted the power of attorney given Cobb was revoked when she learned she did not need an attorney.

Asserting Miss Daughtry would receive $25,000 from the estate and was solvent, the interpleader declared Cobb to be insolvent, and any amount paid to him would jeopardize her interest.

UNTAXED REAL PROPERTY

Thought provoking statistics are provided in a report by the United States bureau of the census revealing the proportion of city real estate which, for one reason or another, is exempt from taxation. The report follows a survey which covered 52 of the 94 cities in the country having a population of more than 100,000.

It is shown that 22 per cent of the real property in these cities pays no taxes. However, the bureau concedes that this figure may be higher than the true facts, due to the habit of some cities in valuing their untaxed properties at the full market price whereas, in many instances, only the taxation-assessed value is given for the taxable properties.

The untaxed properties include those owned and occupied by federal, state or local governments, properties used for private education, for religious and charitable purposes and, in some cities, properties of fraternal and social organizations, cemeteries, homesteads, housing, slum clearance, publicly-owned utilities, privately-owned railroads assessed and taxed on other than ad valorem basis, etc.

Atlanta lists comparatively small amounts of such tax exempt property. In this city the proportion to total assessments is only 11.9 per cent. Only three other cities, Detroit, Akron and Spokane, have lower ratios than this.

For the 52 cities as a whole, the total value of real property not taxed is placed at $11,084,918,000, of which $7,912,885,000 is publicly owned and $3,171,933,000 is privately owned.

The value of untaxed property in Atlanta is placed at $31,750,000, of which $24,394,000 is publicly owned and $7,356,000 is privately owned.

There is no doubt many of these untaxed properties are rightfully exempt but it is probable that, in some instances, exemption has been granted where it should not be. In such instances, the burden is simply transferred from the shoulders of those who should pay to the general taxpayers, making their load that much heavier.

AIR MAIL WEEK

Twenty years ago when Lieutenant James C. Edgerton, U. S. A., took off at Philadelphia for Washington with 22 pounds of air mail—the first ever flown in the United States—the event was nothing to get excited about. The country was at war. The great drive, culminating in military victory, was in the making on the French front. A mere airplane flight on a peaceful mission between two American cities, regardless of the circumstances, was distinctly not news. The people were engrossed in war.

It is decidedly appropriate, however, to pause this week, set aside to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the first flight, to appraise the development of air mail since that event. From this small beginning there is now scarcely a city of commercial importance that is not reached by regularly scheduled mail planes. And in contemplation of spreading the network to every corner of the country, special flights will be made during the week to many small towns never before reached by air mail.

Edgerton's flight was made in a little re-modelled "jenny" which had been used extensively for training. The very day before the scheduled flight the plane arrived at the starting point packed in crates. It had to be assembled and tested. The picture wasn't bright. But in those days nothing was particularly bright. Every job had to be done under extreme handicap. But the war had taught the people how to overcome great obstacles. So the plane was ready in time and the first air mail delivered safely.

From this small beginning, more or less experimental, millions of pounds of air mail are now carried annually over the entire North and South American continents and across the Pacific ocean. Plans are rapidly being perfected to span the Atlantic with regular flights.

In two decades air mail service has far outstripped the growth of regular mail in any similar period of the nation's history.

They call it saber-rattling, but, due to a similarity of sounds, it could be the iron man's trembling knees.

The Caesars parted at Rome, having strengthened a few bonds. Whether any of the same are negotiable remains to be seen.

According to Indiana's Senator Minton, all he knows is what he doesn't see in the papers.

In Washington, a press adviser to the fair sex writes, "Whenever I'm in the dumps I pick myself out a new hat." So that's where they find them.

Then there was the Hollywood child star who was afraid of the dark. Some one told him it was full of lawyers.

GEORGIA'S NEW PENAL SYSTEM

During the past decade no penal system in the nation has come in for more unfavorable, and often unjust, criticism than Georgia's chain gangs. And a number of escaped criminals have not only won additional notoriety, but have successfully taken advantage of these conditions to play upon the feelings of outside executives to frustrate extradition.

But all this is in the past. With the opening of Tattnall prison, the last word in penal construction, the state of Georgia sets up a prison system to serve as a model for the entire country. The new penitentiary is ample in size, equipment and management to make it second to none among the nation's prisons.

Much of the criticism levelled at the old chain gang system was unjustified by the actual facts. Although there were admittedly some abuses, usually brought about by over-zealous guards and attendants, the majority of prisoners preferred this life, even with its hardships, to incarceration behind the cold walls of a penitentiary. It was far more healthful and kept the prisoners in better spirits.

And there are to be no more chain gangs. They are being converted into work camps limited to a much smaller number of prisoners. The available places, and this will come as a distinct shock to former critics, are to be given to prisoners as a reward for good behavior at Tattnall. And it is astonishing, since incarceration has been adopted generally in the state, the number of prisoners who not only prefer camp life but are willing to walk the chalk line to get back to it.

Another feature of the new system that will bear watching for results is the rehabilitation camp. This type of camp is to provide a wholesome atmosphere, a period of transition, so to speak, between the time of release, or shortly before release, and the actual returning of the prisoner to society. This is expected to prepare him, to the greatest extent possible, for the beginning of a new life. Separating the first offender from the hardened type of criminal is also expected to do much toward reshaping the lives of wrongdoers, long regarded as one of the nation's most difficult sociological problems.

AN UNUSUAL CASE

Ordinarily, when congress appropriates funds to defray the cost of an investigation or for some other special job, a return call for more money is to be expected. The work is usually so long drawn out and expensive that estimated costs are generally too low. But not so in the recent unemployment census.

The amount provided was $5,000,000, all of which was to be spent if necessary. But as astonishing as it may seem, the administrator, John D. Biggers, in his report to the President, announced the spending of $14,000 less than $2,000,000, thus returning to the treasury approximately $3,000,000.

True, a large part of the savings under anticipated costs was effected by utilizing facilities of other government agencies as authorized in the act of congress. But reimbursement for all such services was made and included in the cost of the census. One thousand seven hundred employees worked three shifts a day to complete 100,000,000 necessary tabulations in the report. Its 2,000 pages will include much unusual information heretofore unknown pertaining to the nation's 3,076 counties and 982 cities of over 10,000 population.

Unfortunately, business receded so rapidly while the census was being taken that a large part of the report is already obsolete. This, of course, could not be foreseen. But without doubt it contains statistics of sociological nature that can be utilized in charting the future course in unemployment relief.

Not the least unusual feature of the census, however, is the fact that instead of seeking additional funds, as is customary, something over three-fifths of the money appropriated was returned to the United States treasury. Mr. Biggers is not only entitled to commendation, but he should be promptly assigned to another government project. Such talents can undoubtedly be used to advantage.

PUERTO RICANS LIKE PORK

Pork is a tempting everyday dish to most citizens of the United States, but in Puerto Rico the pig is just beginning to come into its own. The Puerto Rican Trade Council, which has a habit of keeping the press of the nation informed on life and things in general on the island, provides the information that 13 of these appetizing animals are being eaten there for every 12 consumed last year.

Puerto Rico, we are told, is "that way" about the tasty meat. Since all of the island's supply comes from the mainland, the council is at a loss to find any particular reason for the increase. "Apparently," they say, "Puerto Ricans just like the taste." In spite of the business recession in the States and the recent shipping strikes in San Juan, about 13,000,000 pounds were shipped to the Island in the first three months of this year, 8 per cent more than the shipments in the same months of last year.

To the Puerto Ricans, all thanks for this boon to southern farmers. May the good islanders find pork the more delicious as they become better acquainted with the succulent meat.

In the democracies there is less ranting from the balconies. The truly brave need not be reminded hourly that they are brave.

HELIUM—AND SCRAP IRON

(From the Christian Science Monitor.)

If the American people approve Mr. Ickes' "one-man sanctions" against the export of helium to Germany, they will do so because they are unwilling that the United States should help to equip for war any country that may resort to force instead of to law for the settlement of international disputes. It is the possibility that Germany could use helium in war which appears to underlie the ban on the sale of this gas for Germany's new Zeppelin. But if this is the sole reason back of the ban, should there not arise in the public mind a few questions about the continuing American trade in copper, scrap iron and other war essentials with Japan—a nation which at the moment cannot, and indeed does not, even pretend to be buying them for peaceful purposes?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

MORGAN CO. VS. NEW DEAL

WASHINGTON, May 17.—

J. P. Morgan and Company must be ready for a bitter struggle to retain its immense power in the American business world. The statement is sensational, yet the conclusion is inescapable. The great house at the corner of Wall and Broad is all but certain to have to fight, and, if it does, its antagonist will be the New Deal.

In the past, of course, Morgan's has participated in the long civil warfare between business and government. But now a single combat between Morgan's and the administration is fast preparing. The stage is set. In the inner circles of Washington and Wall Street, there is excitement and anxiety anticipation. The struggle should soon begin.

Of the events which set the stage, the President's anti-monopoly message was by far the most important. Its mild tone and confusing name have misled many as to the true meaning of the message. The investigation demanded by the New Dealers is to be a mere investigation of "monopolistic practices." It is intended, by those White House advisers who conceived and will direct it, to be a dramatization of the concentration of economic power in the United States.

That Morgan's will be cast as the chief villain of the play cannot be doubted. That the Morgan partners will be called to the stand at the most significant moments of the investigation is frankly admitted by those who are planning it. It is, to be sure, energetically denied that the New Deal is "out to get Morgan's," yet the very nature of the investigation and the results that are hoped from it make it inevitable that Morgan's will be the principal sufferer.

THE ENEMY Moreover, if the administration doesn't succumb to the temptation to try "to get Morgan's," it will be more superhumanly virtuous than it has in the past. The fact is that the great banking firm is regarded by the New Deal's guiding minds as chiefly responsible for the extreme resistance of American business to New Deal policies. From the President down, the most powerful officials of the administration detest Morgan's with an all but personal hatred. From the President down, the New Dealers are convinced, rightly or wrongly, that Morgan's has used its ramifying influences to stiffen obstruction and stir up rebellion.

Persecution complexes are as common among politicians as among financial potentates, and probably the New Dealers have given an undue weight to certain incidents.

SUSPICION'S OCCASIONS

The United Corporation's sudden refusal to register under the holding company act after it had announced its readiness to do so was one recent incident which stirred suspicion. Another was the refusal of Alfred P. Sloan, of General Motors; Walter S. Gifford, of American Telephone and Telegraph, and Edward R. Stettinius Jr., of United States Steel, to sign the friendly statement on government-business co-operation in which John W. Hanes persuaded 16 industrial leaders to join.

Sloan, Stettinius and Gifford, the heads of the three largest industrial companies in the country, are all in close relations with Morgan's. Their companies all do business with Morgan's. And the New Dealers inferred, rightly or wrongly, that their unanimous refusal must be traced to a single source.

Again, the New Dealers believe, rightly or wrongly, that John W. Davis, the Morgan lawyer, took the lead in rallying the utilities companies to their so-called united front against the holding company act. They point out that the financial community, for which Morgan's is the tone, and the Morgan-affiliated industrial companies have consistently taken the most intransigent position.

Men will imagine devils for themselves. It must be emphasized that there is no intention here to pass upon the good sense of the New Dealers' suspicions and beliefs. The important fact is that they exist.

ON OTHER FRONTS The so-called anti-monopoly investigation is planned to attack Morgan's at its most vital point—its far-reaching influence over the policies of corporations, banks, insurance companies and the like. For the first time since the abortive Pujo money trust inquiry, this influence will be called into question.

At the same time, it is not only in the anti-monopoly investigation that the combat between Morgan's and the administration now threatens. By the depression, the nation's railroads have been put squarely in the New Deal's power. By the supreme court's decision of the holding company act, the administration also rules the utilities. And these are two of Morgan's and Morgan, Stanley and Company's most profitable and important fields of operation. Here again, the administration to resist.

Certain financial interests, which have been careful to cultivate the New Deal's friendship, are already hoping to profit by the approaching combat. But before any predictions as to the outcome can be made, one thing should be remembered. As one New Dealer rather ruefully put it: "Morgan's has been investigated before, and only firm that can handle their particular job. So what can you do with them?"

Big Bargain
For Five Dollars.

The column today is strictly in the advertising category. For it is intended to appeal to the bar-hunting, those who are always on the lookout for extra special value for every dollar they spend.

I do hope Mr. John K. Ottley, the alert local advertising manager of The Constitution, doesn't object to advertising on the editorial page. And doesn't send me a bill.

What I am advertising is the greatest bargain in happiness and that contented feeling that was ever offered.

Think of it! For only five dollars you can buy a whole week of supreme joy, a week of healthy food and strength-building exercise out in the grand open country, for a poor little youngster of the city slums. Just for five bucks. It's this way:

Four Hundred
Waiting To Go.

The Atlanta Mission, presided over by the Rev. Felton Williams, has a summer camp out in the country beyond Hapeville. Splendidly equipped to make a perfect vacation spot for little boys and girls who know little of the joys of country life save by hearsay.

In the poorest sections of Atlanta there are about 400 children, all under 12 years of age, who are desperately in need of the help that a week, or two, or three, in this camp could give them.

The childish flotsam from Atlanta's slums, Atlanta does have slums, even though we don't like to use the word. But we might as well be frank about it. That's all some sections of the city are.

These children are undernourished, underweight. They are wistful little tykes, probably wondering why life has given them such a shabby break.

Good doctors and nurses and social workers, who have volunteered their services, have examined these children and their surroundings. And they report 400 who should, by every rule of kindness and decency and fairness, be given the camp opportunity this summer.

The Camp Is There
But Money Is Scarce.
So the camp is there, ready and

BILL M'GEE GIVES DODGERS ONE HIT AS CARDS WIN, 2-1

Russ Bauers Also Hurls 1-Hitter, But Loses to Bees, 1-0.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Sam Leslie's single through the middle of the diamond scored Mel Ott in the last half of the 12th inning yesterday to give the New York Giants a 6-to-5 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

Leslie, a pinch-hitter, got the winning hit off Jack Russell, fourth pitcher for the Chicagoans. In the first half of the twelfth, after the Cubs had filled the bases with none out, Dick Coffman relieved Cliff Melton and retired the next three men in order.

"Fiddler Bill" McGee, St. Louis Cardinal right-hander, pitched one-hit ball to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 1, in the opening game of their three-game series.

McGee drove in the winning run in the seventh.

McGee, in gaining his second victory of the year, struck out nine and gave up only one base on balls. His chance for a shutout was spoiled in the last of the sixth, when Goody Rosen led off with a single, then came all the way home as Ducky Medwick off the ball go through his legs for a three-base error.

Although held to one hit by Russ Bauers, the Boston Bees managed to eke out a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. A first inning, Garm's clean single, and Lloyd Waner's error gave the Bees their run. Milt Shoffner held the Pirates to three hits.

The Cincinnati Reds had a field day at the expense of three Phillips' pitchers, collecting 22 hits to win 13-1. Paul Derringer held the Phils to four hits.

Tech High Beats Boys' High, 10-0, To Win City Prep Title

HAROLD HUMBER GIVES PURPLES ONLY THREE HITS

Grant, Beavers, Marion Lead Smithie Hitting Attack.

By ROY WHITE
Tech High won the city prep baseball championship with a 10-to-0 victory over Boys' High Tuesday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park. It was a postponed game and added another victory to Tech High's long string of baseball championships.

Harold Humber, who last week limited the Purples to one single, came back with another fine exhibition and gave up three singles. He struck out only three batters, but was given some fine support by his mates.

Lefty Bill Murphy started for the Purples but was given some grueling support and was taken out in the eighth inning when the Smithies batted around and scored eight runs.

Grant with a home run and Beavers with a double and three singles, and Marion's double and single led Tech High's batting attack.

McClelland, Chafin, and Melvin singled for the Purples' three hits.

Tech High started the scoring in the second inning when Grant hit a home run to center field.

Humber was safe on an error and singles by Beavers and Marion scooled Humber with the second Smithie run in the fifth inning.

Tech High's hitting power again exerted itself in the eighth.

Melvin singled, Grant walked spikes was safe on Bromberg's error and Melvin scored. Myers singled, scoring Sikes.

Maxwell walked and Myers scored a single. Marion doubled, two-out fly to right field.

Vols Acquire Barath of Hollywood Club

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 17.—The Nashville Southern association team announced today the acquisition of Steve Barath, an experienced third baseman, from Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league.

Manager Charlie Dresser plans to shift Bill Rodda from third to cond, which probably will mean turning George Fallon to Elmer, New York.

SMITHIE CENTER FIELDER-HITS FOR CIRCUIT--TO SEND CHAMPIONS OFF TO FLYING START

BULLPUP STAR ALLOWS AGGIES NO HITS, NO RUNS

Earl Hise Whiffs 12, Walks 4; Pups Win, 3 to 0.

ATHENS, Ga., May 17.—(P)—Three weeks ago Earl Hise was a third baseman on Georgia's freshman baseball team, and today he is a member of Pitching's Hall of Fame.

Hise, of Chickamauga, Ga., and a former star athlete at Edison High school in Miami, Fla., hurled a no-hit, no-run game yesterday against Monroe A. & M. on Sanford field, and allowed only one man to get to third base.

The Bullpups won 3 to 0.

Hise, according to varsity Coach J. V. Sikes and Freshman Coach Howell Hollis, is a potentially great hurler for he has a sizzling fast ball and a nice breaking curve. Old Georgia fans say he looks almost as good now as did Spurgeon Chandler, when the latter was a senior. Chandler has done pretty well as a pitcher, now being a member of the New York Yankees club.

Hise yesterday struck out 12 men, walked only four.

His is a promising halfback in football, being a triple-threat man.

Charlie Yates Has 72 In Walker Team Drill

LONDON, May 17.—(P)—America's Walker cup golfers went through their initial workouts over the Sunningdale course today. Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, who lost 10 pounds during the exceptionally rough crossing, nevertheless scored a 69, four under par.

Chuck Kocsis, of Detroit, and Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, had 71s; Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, a 72; Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Olympia, Wash., 74s; Freddie Haas Jr., of New Orleans, 75, and Reynolds Smith, of Dallas, 76.

Amateurs Box At Lakewood Tonight

Lewis Ready For Ray Bout

Fists will fly before the Homecoming crowd at Lakewood park tonight when amateurs of Atlanta and Chattanooga will mix it in a match featuring the Junior Chamber of Commerce festival sports program.

Not since Tiger Flowers was appearing at his peak has interest over the appearance of a colored champion been so great.

John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world and one of the greatest fighters to the colored race, has contributed to the game, meets Elmer Ray, champion of Florida, in the 15-round main event.

The fight has top billing for the nation this week. Ray, who was selected to meet the champion because of a record which shows victories over Obie Walker, Leroy Haynes, Otis Thomas, Billy Bush, Eddie Ruell and others, is given a good chance to go the limit with Lewis.

In fact, Promoter Cleve Roby, who handled Tiger Flowers in some of his best fights, thinks Ray has a good chance to get the decision.

The remainder of the card is well chosen, with Obie meeting Unknown Winston in a supporting 10-round and Honey Boy Jones, stalemate in the refereeing job, and Herman Croker and Bob Dillard will be glib clerks.

Other Atlanta boxers expected to join in the boxing festival are Lewis Har-grave, 112; Dwight Blanton, 160; Glenn Morrison, 112; Robert Schmitz, 160; Kemp, 112; Charles Bergsiegel, C. L. Gray, 127; Roland Lee, 112; Ken Flagger, 112; Bill Findley, 112; Jack Ornd, 118; Collier, 118; Ray Stoen, 118; Everett Brooks, 140; Tommy Stanford, 150; Gene Everett, 147; Stanford Talton, 152; Harry Brodnax, 126; Gene Turner, 147; Billy Cox, 135; Bruce Segars, 135; Jimmy Hearn, 147, and John Williams, 166.

Summer Tarpon Tournaments Under Way in Florida

VENICE, Fla., May 17.—(P)—The summer tarpon fishing tournaments are underway on the Florida gulf coast.

Along a 300-mile strip of the coast, tarpon fishermen are angling for the fighting game fish, with several thousand dollars in cash, trophies and fishing tackle posted as prizes by sponsoring organizations.

Tournament records show that 14 years ago there was but one of the competitive fishing events staged along the coast. Today, with the summer run reaching its height, the number of towns and cities holding tournaments has increased to more than 20, says T. M. Wrede, director of the Venice-Nokomis tarpon derby.

A survey, just completed, indicates that 59 million tires now in use are smooth or will become smooth during 1938. Many of these are unsafe. Unless these dangerous tires are replaced, millions of motorists will be taking needless chances. Why risk human life for those last few extra miles?

BE SAFE... REPLACE OLD, SMOOTH TIRES NOW!

IF YOUR TIRES are old and smooth, you're taking unnecessary risks every mile you drive.

For smooth tires are merciless. They respect no one—man, woman or child. And they strike without warning!

Why risk an accident — injuries to your family — to yourself — to other drivers or pedestrians, by trying to get those "few extra miles" out of your tires.

Go to your nearby tire dealer today for a thorough safety check-up. Then, if he finds your tires are unsafe — have them replaced with safe, new tires. And remember this—in America today you get the finest quality tires at the lowest prices—ten times longer tire life

Popular Summer Resorts To Form Setting for Gay House Parties

By Sally Forth.

WITH springtime in the air and summer about to enter officially on the social calendar, scores of young Atlantans are daily making their house party plans for the coming month. Leaving next Saturday for a week end of swimming, golfing and horseback riding at the Franklin Country Club will be the group including Alice Davis, Christine Thiesen, Jimmy Dorsey, Bill and Neville Sloan and Lee Richardson. The sextet will return to Atlanta early Monday morning.

On June 11 a cottage at Ponte Vedra, Fla., is to be the setting for the house party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Gerdine, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Clarke, Elizabeth Hopkins, Mary Russell Irby, Alton Irby and V. W. McKinney. This group plans to enjoy two weeks of resort gaiety before coming home.

It isn't exactly a house party that draws Sarah Lewis to Washington, but her first class reunion at National Cathedral school will be featured by the same type of festive air. On her way to the national capital she will stop by Randolph-Macon College at Lynchburg, where she will be joined by Cora Louise McGee, and the former school roommates will return to National Cathedral together.

As you will remember, Sarah walked off with many honors while attending school there, including the presidency of the student council last year.

THIS is not a rumor. The young couple definitely plans to be married next fall and they have just begun to break the news to their most intimate friends. Here are the clues, so get busy and figure this one out.

She is an only child and made her debut two seasons ago. She is a lovely blonde and possesses the type of winsome personality and cordial friendliness that has won her a wide circle of friends and admirers. She refuses to spend much of her time in Atlanta, but when she does honor this city with a sojourn, she is always central figure at a large number of informal parties.

He, it seems, is one of four children and is a scion of a family long prominent in Atlanta and in the south. He excels at a certain sport and is an all-around athlete. The pair has been frequently seen together at parties for the past two winters. He is a brunet.

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Harris received a cablegram a few days ago from their daughter, Anne, who attends school in Florence, Italy, for permission to return home for the summer, they had a happy surprise. Mr. and Mrs. Harris spent the early spring vacation in Italy with their daughter, at which time plans were made for the Atlantans to return to Europe in June after Anne's school closed and join their daughter for extensive travel abroad during the summer vacation.

Anne's cablegram revealed the fact that the Atlanta schoolgirl

Miss Jackson Weds Jack B. McMichael At Decatur Church

Miss Frances Marie Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Jackson, of Decatur, became the bride of Jack Brame McMichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McMichael, of Boligee, Ala., at a ceremony taking place at 6 o'clock last evening at the First Baptist church in Decatur. The Rev. A. J. Moncrief, pastor, assisted by Dr. P. H. Carmichael, of Columbia Seminary, officiated in the presence of relatives and friends.

Prior to and during the ceremony a musical program was given by Miss Evelyn Wall, organist, and William Stewart, soloist. Palms and ferns formed the background of the altar, on which were placed baskets of Easter lilies and cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Ushers were Hugh Milby, J. T. McEntire Jr., Tom B. Anderson, of Birmingham, Ala., and W. Lowry Walker, of Cleburne, Texas.

The maid of honor and the bride's only attendant was Miss Lucille Harvey, of Hogansville, Ga. She wore ashes of roses net fashioned over matching taffeta. The tight bodice was made with a square neck and short puffed sleeves. The skirt flared in fullness to the floor. A sash of ashes of roses and delphinium blue taffeta fell to the bottom of her gown. She wore a Juliet cap of net, with streamers which fell below her shoulders and were caught with clusters of tiny flowers. She carried a bouquet of pastel shaded flowers tied with satin ribbon.

The bride entered with her father, T. C. Jackson, by whom she was given in marriage, they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, William Stewart. She was beautifully gowned in white starched chiffon, posed over white taffeta, and fashioned with a high neckline. The small collar, ending in points in the front and back, was buttoned with self-covered buttons from the collar down the back to the hips. The long sleeves were puffed at the top of the shoulder and gradually fitted snugly in a point over the hand. The skirt flared in graceful fullness below the knees and widened at the back to form a train. A narrow pleated ruffle edged with lace formed the bottom of the train. Her long tulie veil was caught to her hair with a halo and adorned with orange blossoms across the front. Her only ornament was a yellow gold and diamond pin, the gift of the groom, which was given to his mother by his father. The bride carried a bouquet of calla lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Jackson, mother of the bride, wore a gown of rose lace and net, over taffeta. Her flowers were roses and valley lilies. Mrs. McMichael, mother of the groom, was gowned in blue lace and she wore pink roses and valley lilies on her shoulder. After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. McMichael left for Columbia Seminary where they attended the graduation exercises at which Mr. McMichael received his diploma. Later the young couple left for a short wedding trip, returning to Decatur for several weeks before going to Mount Pleasant, Texas, to reside.

Mrs. McMichael wore a navy crepe with white polka dots and a white sharkskin coat, belted with a wide stitched belt, a navy blue felt hat and blue and white accessories.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McMichael, of Boligee, Ala., parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Millar, of Savannah; Dr. and Mrs. W. Harvey, of Hogansville; Miss Helen Ward, of Albany, and Gordon Hillard, of Tifton.

Other of her favorite graduation presents—a complete set of matched luggage, also a present from her parents.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON. Monday—Soon after we returned from our ride on Sunday morning, it began to rain in earnest and I hoped it was doing the same thing in Hyde Park where rain is badly needed.

The Todhunter girls, with Miss Dickerman and Miss Goodwin, went with me to the airmail post office, temporarily set up on Pennsylvania avenue between 14th and 15th streets. There is a large sleeper plane cozily parked beside the post office. How they ever got it there is a marvel to me. I imagine many people will examine the berths, food, service and the like during this week.

I was presented with a large sheet of stamps. Mr. Vincent Burke, the postmaster for the District of Columbia, seemed to think it was appropriate for me to receive them, but I know better. If they are not turned over to my husband, I am sure I will soon hear about it! Collectors never seem to have enough of whatever they collect and I really think one should be thankful when it is stamps, because they take up comparatively little space.

We were shown a model of one of the early airmail transports with a little open cockpit and one propeller. This industry has certainly made marvelous strides since those early days.

The Todhunter girls left for New York city in the afternoon and at 5 o'clock I received the ladies of the Texas Garden Clubs, who have been touring this vicinity. They brought with them Senator Alberto Salinas Carranza, of Mexico, who came to extend a personal invitation to me to accompany the garden club to Mexico. Next year's annual meeting of the Garden Clubs of America is to be held in Arkansas, I believe, and they are planning on this trip to Mexico as a side trip.

In a very charming speech they explained they could bring me none of their flowers so, instead, they brought me a cake decorated with flowers made in varicolored icing by one of their members. It is quite the most intricate and beautiful frosting I have ever seen. I kept it for supper when the President returned from his very wet two days on the boat, and put it in front of him so he could enjoy it before cutting it. I did not feel that anyone had any right to destroy so much work, but we couldn't keep it and it tasted very good.

Among other people, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, minister to Norway, had supper with us last night. I have never seen anyone more enthusiastic than she is about her experiences there. The ladies who have been envoys to Scandinavian countries seem to find them sympathetic. She has made a study of homecraft work which is extremely interesting and I think will be valuable to us in some of the efforts we are making to develop craft work in the rural homes of this country.

I left early this morning. While it was windy and very cool for this time of the year, it was nice to see the sun sparkling on the Potomac river.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

Here Susan Hayward, delightful new "find" of the Warner Brothers, shows you how to do an exercise that's sure to keep the tummy line under control. Starting in position shown in top, picture, she walks back to position shown below, then forward to where she started—and keeps the abdominal muscles pulled up and in all the time.

YOUR FIGURE GROWS OLDER BY INCHES.

The only way we could see ourselves as we really are would be to have a dual vision mirror which magically reflected the way we looked five years ago as well as the way we look today. Change is so gradual that, without such a contrast, we are blissfully unaware that any change has occurred.

If you could compare these two reflections, you would probably find a startling difference. The one would have a neat and tidy waistline, slim hips and no tummies at all. The other would have a settled look through the midsection . . . definitely older.

What has happened to those once strong muscles nature gave you? They have been allowed to stretch and grow slack until they no longer hold the figure in line. But you could have kept them firm and strong. Only ten minutes of daily exercise during those five years would have given you a young figure now as you had then. It is never too late, however, for corrective exercise, and here is one that simply walks away with a tummy bulge.

Position: Stretch the arms high overhead, pulling the tummy muscles up and in. Now bend over and touch the fingers to the floor in front of the toes, keeping the tummy muscles pulled up.

Movement: From this position "walk" backward until the weight is resting on hands and toes, the body stretched out in a straight line. Keeping the knees stiff, walk back to the hands, continually pulling up and in with those tummy muscles. Relax, and repeat the exercise not more than three times daily for the first week.

It will not be necessary for you to get down on all fours to exercise if you make a habit of pulling up with the abdominal muscles to keep them where they belong. Don't try to pull in—this only gets your breath. Make it a rule to pull up always with the abdominal muscles and with the chest, and you will continually strengthen these muscles as well as cultivate a naturally beautiful posture.

We don't grow old by years, we grow old by inches, and when the figure spreads you can look mid-aged at 25. Don't let excess inches change your figure and make you look old.

'NUISANCE' REPORTS ATTACKED BY F.D.R.

President Would Combine All Citizen Business With U. S. on Election Day.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today he was taking steps to relieve business and industry of some of the expense and "inconveniences" involved in the preparation of "large numbers of statistical reports" they are required to file periodically with the government.

Expressing concern at the extent of such reports, he directed the central statistical board to determine their number, decide where duplications exist and make recommendations for consolidations in the interest of efficiency and economy.

Mr. Roosevelt announced this action at his press conference and

Men Laugh at Jibes If Garden Bug Bites

When the gardening bug bites a man it's time to watch out, L. H. Brannon, of Atlanta, gardening enthusiast, told the convention of the Florida Florists' Association at Tampa, Fla., yesterday.

Brannon admitted the idea of men's garden circles was often the target of jesting, but, he added "when the bug bites a man, he's a more ardent gardener enthusiast than a woman." Brannon spoke on organizing men's garden clubs in Florida, and cited the success of his efforts in Atlanta, where it was branded as "petticoatless."

They raised the question of requiring the nation's citizens to fill out questionnaires with various useful statistical information when they go to polling places to vote. Election day might be changed to citizens' day, he said. The plan originated, he added, in Australia.

Some proponents of the scheme also have been discussing the possibility of adding a poll tax, to be levied to those who vote. The President thought this was not a bad idea.

As subjects to be included in such questionnaires, he suggested crop figures, the number of cattle owned, change of business, and whether the voter was renting or buying his home. The citizen also might be given an opportunity to pay taxes on election day. Summarizing, the President said the plan would give the citizen a chance to dispose of all his business with the government in one day.

CHURCH WORKERS HURT.

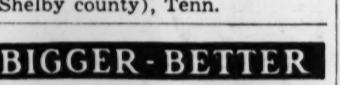

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 17.—(AP)—Four workers of the Church of God mission headquarters, Cleveland, suffered injuries today when their automobile collided with a parked truck at the top of a grade on Highway 51, near Lucy (Shelby county), Tenn.

The night staff had gone home.

Undaunted, however, realizing that the fire story was big news, the Photo Tipster telephoned an executive of the editorial department, who, in turn, rounded up photographers, reporters and men of the mechanical departments.

As a result, The Constitution was on the street first with the news and pictures of the tragedy, and will be in the news soon.
